Mark has always loved poetry. He started writing poetry when he was ten years old. As a teacher, he used rap in his lessons to teach his pupils about English literature. Mark Grist became famous after he won a rap battle against 17-year-old MC Blizzard. The Power of One Person

1 Nancy Lawlor (27), from New York, collects as many colorful bouquets as possible - flowers from hotels, weddings, parties and gala dinners. Then she gives them away to people in need. She often divides the flower arrangements into small bouquets so there's more to go around. How did she get this idea?

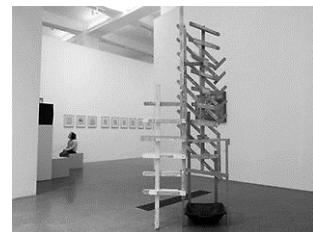

- 2 She was inspired to start her nonprofit organization FlowerPower eight years ago. Sitting in the lobby of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, an enormous floral display attracted her attention. Where did all these flowers go at the end of the day? Nancy just picked up the house phone and found out who she needed to ask. After getting the answer that all the flowers went to the rubbish-dump, Nancy volunteered to take them away instead. Once the hotel manager agreed, Nancy delivered a $2,000 worth large pink bouquet to a New York City hospital where her friend Guy worked. "It all started with one person saying yes," she says.
- 3 FlowerPower has already distributed more than $2.5 million worth of flowers to hospitals, crisis centers, and nursing homes. The bouquets last several days, giving patients a healthy dose of good cheer. "I've seen thousands of people feel better," she says, "all over a simple bouquet of flowers that originally would've been thrown away. When people ask me 'How do you do this?', I say: 'buckets, cabs and will power'."

Cleaner Destroys Art Work

A museum in Dortmund is counting the cost after a cleaning woman mistook a valuable piece of modern art by artist Martin Kippenberger for a mess and damaged it. The work called 'When It Starts Dripping From The Ceiling' consists of a rubber bucket placed underneath a wooden tower. Inside the bucket Kippenberger had sprayed some paint representing dried rainwater. When the cleaner saw the dirty looking bucket she thought it needed a wash. She scrubbed the surface until it gleamed. "It's impossible to return it to its original state," a spokesman said.

Comments (4):

This piece of art looks like a broken clothes horse. I'm a carpenter and I could knock this together in no time. For far less money. Give that cleaner a pay rise.

Solar 23

The stains in my sink and bath must be worth thousands of pounds! It looks like something that should be on a bonfire tonight.

Aitch

What a tragedy for the owner and the museum! I hope they are able to restore this superb work of art to its original condition. I would suggest a better screening when hiring cleaners.

Kashe

Modern art can sometimes look like rubbish but nevertheless this woman should be fired. It's not her job to touch the art work itself. Such a person cannot be allowed to work in a museum.

Jody's holiday adventure

Jody, a 14-year-old girl from Nottinghamshire, tells us about her scary experience.

- 1 "It was the summer holiday and my sister Jess and I were bored. We decided to visit our older sister Kay. Her house is just a short walk from where we live. After walking for about five minutes, we bumped into some classmates. While we were talking, a group of boys on mopeds started driving up and down the road, making a lot of noise."
- 2 Some of the people living there came out looking angry. Suddenly a police car drove around the corner. "OK everyone, fun-time over!" shouted one police officer, getting out of the car. The boys started swearing at the police. The police caught a boy and tried to put him in handcuffs. But the boy wanted to run away and that made the policeman very angry. "OK, I'm taking out my Taser," he suddenly said. A Taser is a kind of gun which gives a strong electric shock through a wire attached to darts.
- 3 Then it happened. "Jess, help me!" I screamed to my sister. "What is going on?" I felt a stabbing pain in my leg and my entire body was shaking. A terrible pain shot through me. Then everything went dark. I had been hit accidentally by the Taser gun. After a while, I began to see clearly again. I tried to stand up but I couldn't move because I felt a huge cramp in the back of my left leg. One of the darts from the Taser stuck out of my leg! I pulled it out and saw the blood coming through my jeans.
- 4 I wanted to go home as soon as possible, but then the policeman said something I will never forget: "Come back! You still have one in you!" I tried not to cry from pain when he pulled a second dart from my left shoulder. Then the police drove us home in a police car. The policeman apologised to my parents and sat with us while we waited for an ambulance to arrive. They checked my blood pressure and did some tests and then told me I was OK. Everyone said I was lucky, Tasers can be dangerous.
- 5 For the next few weeks, I felt very shaken. I was scared easily and I had constant cramps in my leg and shoulder. Now I feel all right again. We didn't make an official complaint to the police. I do not hate them for what happened, but I do think they should have been more careful - the Taser should never have hit me".

Disneyland Resort

The Happiest Place on Earth
Welcome to the Disneyland Resort!

Our theme parks will be busy with our guests today, therefore, we offer the following tips to help you make the most of your day at the Resort:

Rent strollers, wheelchairs or lockers for the day while supplies last.

Use Disney's FASTPASS service or plan on visiting popular attractions early in the day or later in the evening when wait times will be shorter. Plan your meals for non-peak times, such as between 11 a.m. and noon, between 2 pm and 4 pm, or after 8 pm, in order to experience shorter wait times.

Visit the various shows, such as the Enchanted Tiki Room, Honey I Shrunk the Audience, Innoventions, Muppets 3-D and Bug's Life as these have shorter wait times than the attractions.

View fireworks from locations other than Main Street, U.S.A. Great viewing is available in the area of It's a Small World in Fantasyland.

If possible, do not leave the park immediately after the end of the fireworks show, as this is a popular time to exit. Take advantage of this time to enjoy one or more attractions before leaving the Resort. Consider upgrading your tickets to an Annual Passport so you don't feel pressured to experience everything in one day.

My most embarrassing moment

My most embarrassing moment happened just a few weeks ago! I was wearing these really baggy pants, right? Well, I had spray painted my shoes the night before and they were still a bit wet so my pants kept sticking to my shoes. During the lunch hour at school we went outside on to the football field. So... I decided to have something to eat on the seats near the football field with my friends. As I was climbing up the stairs... bam! I fell straight on my face. Then two minutes later, I fell again, but this time on the concrete. All this was in front of 80 kids and my crush saw me fall both times. He decided to help me up. Then he took me away from my friends and asked me to be his girlfriend. See, good can come out of embarrassing moments!

Cedrick's True Story

- 1 "Last February I became very breathless and tired. In March our family doctor sent me to a hospital in London and there I was told I had a serious heart disease. I needed a pacemaker real soon. It was my first ever operation and the doctors said my heart's function would improve now. But in October I was getting worse by the day. I was pale, thin, always cold, breathless and my oxygen levels - usually 98-100% in a normal person - were 40-55%.
- 2 Then in December, on my way to the cinema with my friends, I felt very dizzy and I collapsed in the car park. Luckily, a cardiac nurse happened to be nearby and she gave me the kiss of life. I was rushed to hospital in an ambulance. The specialists advised me to join the waiting list for a heart transplant. I had always been very much against it but now I knew it was my only option. Only sixteen days after I was put on the list, the hospital called... I was speechless, which is very rare for me!
- 3 Surrounded by my family, I waited for confirmation that the donor heart was a good match for me. When I was taken to the operating theatre at 11.30am, I hugged my family. I felt nervous but hopeful that the transplant would lead to a new and better life for me. I don't remember much about the first week after the operation, as I was under heavy sedation. But after 11 days I felt much better and I was allowed to move out of the intensive care and on to a ward.
- 4 I had my first test to check if my body wasn't rejecting the new heart, but all was well. Just 17 days after the transplant I was allowed to go home, feeling like myself again. No longer permanently out of breath, ill and unhappy.
- 5 Finally I want to ask you to think about registering as an organ donor. You can do it online and it could save up to nine lives. Thousands of people in the UK today are in the same position I was in, waiting every day for that life-changing call, so talk to your parents and think about signing up to give the gift of life!"

Best Friends Forever Dilemma

Scarlett:

"None of my friends are in any of my classes this year. What should I do?"

"That must be awful. You can still see your friends at lunch and in school sports, activities and clubs. Look at it this way: by the end of the year, you will have buddies in your new classes." Oliver, 14

"It must be really awful to be alone in a class full of strangers. Why don't you take an extra subject together with some of your friends? It will look really good on your CV when you take an extra class, and you will have solved your problem as well!" Xandra, 14

"I've been there too. But come in with a smile and a compliment and you're sure to meet some great new people. You never know, you could meet a lifetime best friend just by saying hi. It's hard when you don't know anybody."

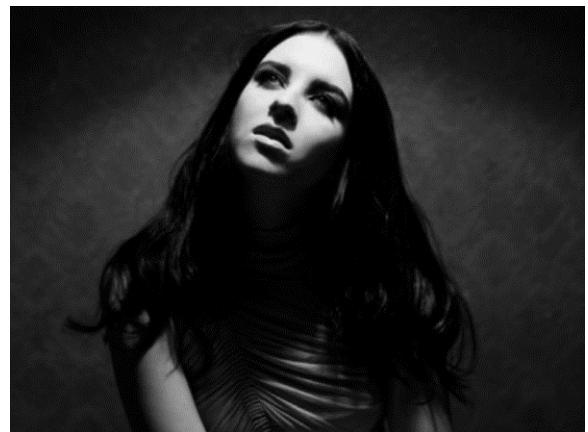

Briana, 13

"There must be at least one person in your class who you've talked to before. Talk to your friends and see if they know anyone nice in your classes and reach out to them. Plus, you still have a life outside school."

Kelsey, 14

Singing sensation - Clare Maguire

- 1 For as long as she can remember, Clare Maguire wanted to be a singer. But not everyone shared her vision. "My music teacher told me to stop dreaming and get on with my schoolwork. He said that I'd never make it as a singer, so I rebelled and dropped out of school," Clare explains. "People ask me what I would like to say to him now, but I'd probably thank him because he was the reason I am successful now."
- 2 "I went home and told my parents that I wasn't going back to school," she says. "I had no choice, making music was the only thing I could do and the one thing that made me feel great. My parents were really worried, understandably, and said I should get a job and try to make it within a year. So I got a job at Topshop while putting as many demos as possible on MySpace. After hearing one of my demos, a London-based producer called Primary 1 contacted me, introduced me to my manager and things took off."
- 3 At 19, Clare took the brave step to say goodbye to her family and moved 120 miles south from Birmingham to London all by herself to focus on her music. "I was quite lonely at first but then I started to work a lot and meet people. I always say the best thing to do is find people around you who make you laugh and everything will be all right, so that's what I did."
- 4 Clare is a successful singer now but she is amazingly down-to-earth. "I don't think anything has changed that much, apart from developing a fan base and getting messages from people saying they want to meet me," she says. "All I care about is creating something which people really enjoy, that's my ambition."

Bank robber

Miami, Florida – On September 30, Charles Jones walked into a Wachovia Bank in Miami. He pulled a gun from his pocket and robbed a teller of almost $16,000. As he ran out of the bank, he stuffed the gun into his waistband, accidentally firing it into his pants. The bullet missed him but when he stepped into the street he was hit by a van. Jones managed to stumble to a waiting car, losing his gold tooth and leaving his gun and hat lying in the street. The FBI matched DNA from the tooth with Jones' DNA, making it easy to find him.

He was arrested a few days after the robbery at a Miami hotel. Agents found a sock full of money from the robbery stuffed into his jeans. The serial numbers from the money matched the dollar bills taken from the bank. He can be now sentenced to a lifetime in prison.

Product Description

Another hilarious and moving novel from bestselling author David Walliams. This new book is just as funny as David's previous bestsellers. Our hero Ben is bored beyond belief after he is made to stay at his grandma's house. She's the boringest grandma ever: all she wants to do is play Scrabble, and eat cabbage soup. But there are two things Ben doesn't know about his grandma.

- 1 She was once an international jewel thief.
- 2 All her life, she has been plotting to steal the crown jewels, and now she needs Ben's help...

By Bev 'Go For It' Porter - See all my reviews

David Walliams' books are a hit in our household - he writes so well and the stories are so original; what an amazing idea to transform a boring stay at gran's house into a crazy adventure as young Ben's gran is revealed to be an international jewel thief and now she wants to steal the Crown Jewels and needs her grandson's help.

By jgreenk - See all my reviews

This was a brilliant book that had my sides splitting and then my tears rolling (both of these not literally of course). David Walliams' books are the only books that actually make me laugh out loud.

By Linda K. Richards - See all my reviews

I listened to the audio CD of this book intending to send it to my grandson. It is fun and entertaining. However, I will not be sending it to him as the book has a sad end. He would be in tears if I were to read this book to him. I would change the end to Granny moving into an Old Folks home. For me, it is a good, original story spoilt by a sad end.

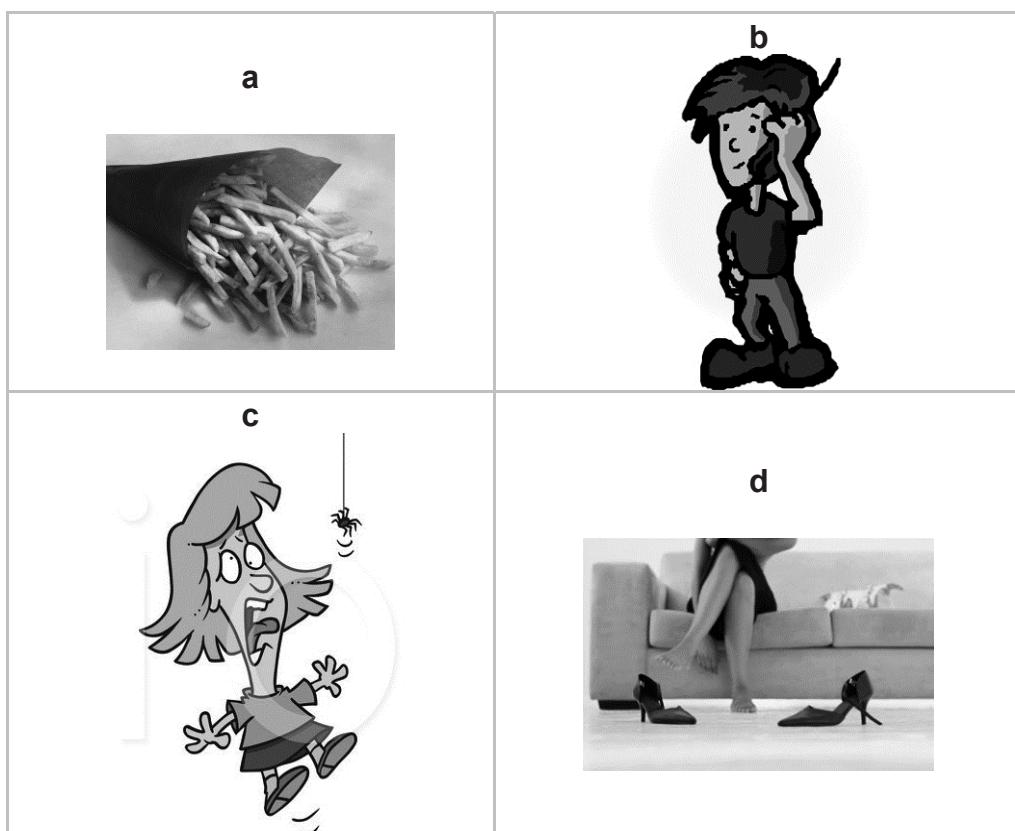

By cracker - See all my reviews

Great book for my 12-year-old grandson, who thinks his own Nan is the best! Good stocking filler! Viewed David Walliams on Jonathan Ross Show when he read a short preview and decided there & then to purchase Gangsta Granny as soon as it came out.
